

Abstract

A system and method for organizing digital images automatically. A digital image is acquired and automatically converted into an image data file with an associated date, 5 and stored into a file system folder associated with that date. When the digital image is to be acquired using an optical scanner, the method automatically acquires the image using predefined scanner settings that are appropriate to a photographic image to scan the item.